How we may use and disclose your protected health information without your written authorization

For treatment: We use and disclose your protected health information to provide your medical care, both routine and emergent. Doctors, nurses, technicians, medical students and other health care staff may share your health information to plan, coordinate and manage your health care. We may also disclose medical information about you to family members or others involved in your treatment or in payment for your treatment.

For payment: We may use and disclose your protected health information to obtain payment for the treatment and services we provide for you. For example, we may give your health plan information about treatment you received from the Medical Group so that the health plan will pay us or reimburse you for the treatment. We may also tell your health plan about a treatment you are going to receive to have the treatment approved or make arrangements for payment. We may disclose to agencies and courts for collection of unpaid bills.

For health care operations: We may use and disclose protected health information about you for our administrative activities and operations that are needed to run the Medical Group. For example, we may use medical information to review our treatment to evaluate the performance of our staff in caring for you. We may ask that you sign in for your appointments and we may call your name in the waiting room. We may also disclose your information to doctors, nurses, health care students and other personnel for learning purposes. We may disclose your protected health information to comply with State and Federal law.

For appointment reminders: We may use and disclose protected health information to contact you by mail or phone or leave a message for reminding you of an appointment. The phone number that you give us may be used for automatic messages, unless you notify us to use another number.

For treatment alternatives and services: We may use and disclose protected health information to let you know about treatment options or health-related services that may be of interest to you.

For “business associate” functions: We may share your protected health information with our business associates that perform various functions for the Medical Group, such as billing and transcription service. Whenever an arrangement between our office and a business associate involves the use or disclosure of your protected health information, we will have a written agreement that contains terms to protect the privacy of your information.

For abuse or neglect: If we believe that you have been a victim of abuse, neglect or domestic violence, we may disclose your protected health information to an agency authorized to receive such information.

For legal proceedings: We may disclose protected health information in the course of a judicial or administrative proceeding in response to an order of a court or administrative tribunal (to the extent such disclosure is expressly authorized) or in certain conditions in response to a subpoena, discovery request or other lawful process.

For other required or permitted uses: We may use and disclose your protected health information as required by law and to comply with the requirements of workers’ compensation, law enforcement, national security, military activities, organ donation, health oversight agencies, coroners, funeral directors and public health authorities. We must provide, upon request, patients’ protected health information to the Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services. We may use and disclose your protected health information whenever necessary to respond to a serious threat to your health or safety or the health or safety of another person. For armed forces members and veterans, we may disclose your protected health information as required by military command authorities.

For inmates: We may use or disclose your protected health information whenever required.

For fundraising: We may use your information to contact you to raise funds for the benefit of the Medical Group by the Palmetto Health Foundation and USC Office of Development; however the patient has the right to opt-out of such communications.

For research: Under certain circumstances, we may use and disclose protected health information about you for research purposes. We may disclose your protected health information to people preparing to conduct a research project, for example, to help them look for patients with specific medical needs, so long as the protected health information does not leave the Medical Group. We may also disclose information to researchers when an Institutional Review Board has approved a research proposal and its protocols to ensure the privacy of your protected health information.
